

Environmental geography competition

Welcome to the geography photograph competition.

The competition theme is spoiling our environment.

Environmental geography is all around and various aspects undoubtedly play a big part in our lives. So the challenge for you is to photograph some aspect of how environmental geography is linked to your life.

To enter you need to take 1 photograph. This could be something on a grand scale but might equally be a small-scale feature; it could be something near to where you live.

Your photograph needs to be accompanied with a title and a description of up to 250 words. The description needs to be informative and provide an insight into how the photograph is connected to you.

A good way to start would be My photograph shows...

Here are some examples that might help you get started.

Email your work to humanities@appletonacademy.co.uk

Remember to include your photograph and your description
